★ Social bookmark services for Macs?
During lecture 9/8 I recommended [\[link\]](#) as a very powerful and very fun social bookmark system. A student asked if StumbleUpon works on Macs, or if there are alternative social bookmark services for Macs. I will award extra credit to students who post helpful replies to this question.... ★ Who owns routers on the Internet?
During lecture Friday 9/8, a couple students asked who owns and operates routers on the Internet--- for example, does Comcast operate routers on the Internet? I will award extra credit to students who post helpful replies to this question.

The image shows a screenshot of the Amazon.com website as viewed in a Mozilla Firefox browser. The browser's address bar displays the URL `http://www.amazon.com/ref=topnav_gw_/103-1608654-8083049`. The page header includes the Amazon logo, the text "amazon.com", and navigation links for "Bruce's Store", "See All 35 Product Categories", "Your Account", "Cart", "Your Lists", and "Help". Below the header is a search bar with the text "Search Amazon.com" and a "GO" button, along with a "Find Gifts" button featuring a gift icon. A personalized message reads: "Hello, Bruce E Hoppe. We have recommendations for you. (If you're not Bruce E Hoppe, click here.)". The main content area features a "Browse" section with links for "Books, Music & Movies", "Books", and "DVD". A prominent banner for "amazonunbox™ Video Downloads" is displayed, showing various video thumbnails including "CHAPPELLE'S". To the right, a "Check Out" section is partially visible, featuring a book cover by Jack Welch.
